$10. She is also a public health professional holding her master's in public health a regulatory affairs professional having worked for Fortune 500 pharmaceutical companies and an advocate for marginalized communities in clinical research settings. She's a fighter and a tiger climbing the ranks from humble beginnings as a pediatric surgical unit volunteer / BSc Pre Med Student to a CVS (Certified PharmTech) then off to Pfizer as a lead regulatory affairs associate?! Come on you can't make this stuff up this is the stuff of legends people!Kyyah's background stems from a desire driven for success. She's always excelled at what she does be it in the pharmacy undergrad 6 Sigma Lean and green belt training a surgical internship and then regulatory affairs! She's worked for big league Pharma such as Pfizer then went to Amgen (in biotech) but remained in regulatory affairs for chemical manufacturing of compounding and then ended up at a smaller pharmaceutical company around 2016. For example she used to sell designer shoes at Macy's for about a year and this taught her everything she needed to know on how to excel in a job interview?! I'm just a fan but I promise you that you will not be disappointed!
