

Devil Take the Blue Tail Fly By John Franklin Bardin As he approached thirty he moved to New York City where during his adulthood he was an executive of an advertising agency published ten novels and taught creative writing as well as advertising at the NEW SCHOOL FOR SOCIAL RESEARCH. In 1946 Bardin entered a period of intense creativity during which he wrote three crime novels that were relatively unsuccessful at first one of them not even being published in America until the late 1960s but which have since become well regarded cult novels. As he approached thirty he moved to New York City where during his adulthood he was an executive of an advertising agency published ten novels and taught creative writing as well as advertising at the NEW SCHOOL FOR SOCIAL RESEARCH. In 1946 Bardin entered a period of intense creativity during which he wrote three crime novels that were relatively unsuccessful at first one of them not even being published in America until the late 1960s but which have since become well regarded cult novels. His best regarded works The Deadly Percheron The Last of Philip Banter and Devil Take the Blue Tail Fly experienced renewed interest in the 1970s when they were discovered by British readers:

Devil Take the Blue Tail Fly John Franklin Bardin was born in Cincinnati Ohio on November 30 1916. During his teens he lost nearly all his immediate family to various ailments: His best regarded works The Deadly Percheron The Last of Philip Banter and Devil Take the Blue Tai John Franklin Bardin was born in Cincinnati Ohio on November 30 1916, During his teens he lost nearly all his immediate family to various ailments. Also involved in public relations and journalism Mr. Bardin resided thereafter in New York City until his death. {site_link}

