His mehfiles never had a set subject nor did he lecture on chosen topics: His way was to ask people if they had questions and then he responded to these in his highly original style. There are about 40 books to his credit including "Shab Chiragh" "Kiran Kiran Sooraj" and "Dil Darya Samandar", It is self evident that his books as well as recordings of talks are a treasure trove of wisdom: He spent most part of the day in silent tranquility but when he spoke there was nothing that was not quotable, His written and spoken words are quotable for their content as well as their construction. Master of aphorism he has the miraculous ability to capture a rainbow of meaning in a few dewdrops of well chosen words. His newspaper writings secured him a permanent place in the gallery of stylist prose writers: Though his main claim to fame is his writings a select circle knows that he was an equally great conversationalist, Ashfaq Ahmed the conversationalist par excellence of our time has said The sentences we concoct are our piece of craft Wasif's lines came from somewhere else, His prose is simpler using figures of speech less frequently and thus sounds natural but it has distinctive qualities of fine poetry, Renowned politician and connoisseur of art and literature Hanif Ramay is of the view Wasif's prose influences readers in the same manner as the poetry of Iqbal, Siraj Muneer a well read scholar and critic has written We took them as columns but they were another aalam (world): A discussion of his peculiar style would be incomplete without mentioning that all his writings have a lot between the lines too. The sentence moves with grace and the words have the ring of sensation, " {site_link} continue to full text {site_link} Simply an exceptional book for every one and for every age: Considered to be founder of a new thought system called WASFIYAAT a blend of mystic wisdom ethics and patriotism he beautifully amalgamated patriotism with mysticism: Wasif Ali Wasif آج کا افتخار نہ جانے کب ندامت میں بدل جائے۔ [1]
