Falling in love is a beautiful experience. Deciding to fall in love is the hard part. No escape. Your heart and mind fight it out. (2) In real life love has to be possible. Me: Love is forbearing. But sometimes the heart is impatient. This statement is still unclear to me. (3) Waiting is painful. Forgetting is painful. I have been in both situations. I have waited. I have forgotten. Only by then will you be able to move on. Poets reiterate this in their masterpieces. Hopeless romantics sing about it. It just transforms. There you go. I am done with another book. P.S. The female character is Pilar. She was the one telling the story. But the male character remained nameless. Hmm. Review published on my (ex)blog @ <http://theobnoxiouslevin.blog-city.com>) Paulo Coelho Thank you Mr Coelho. True love is an act of total surrender. and the content.?! uummmmm empty trite banalities and cliches. it was not much help either. Paulo Coelho "To love is to lose control." Hm this is a strange and hard one to review. Pilar is invited to a seminar by an old friend. Their reunion strikes a chord and changes them both." 3. She has learned well how to bury her feelings. If he has to make a choice may he make it now. Then I will either wait for him or forget him. We suffer because our love is going unrecognized. We suffer because we are unable to impose our own rules. True love is an act of total surrender. You have to take risks. I could have. If pain must come may it come quickly. If he has to make a choice may he make it now. Then I will either wait for him or forget him. Waiting is painful. Forgetting is painful. Dreams mean work. Paulo Coelho "If pain must come may it come quickly. If he has to make a choice may he make it now. Then I will either wait for him or forget him." This book was so relatable so heartfelt. I think I should read it every year. In the following year COELHO published The Alchemist. In the following year COELHO published The Alchemist.
