

The Nan-Mei-Su Girls of Emerald Hill By Goh Sin Tub Set during the Japanese Occupation this poignant novel unfolds the loves and heartaches of the girls as well as their brushes with the notorious Japanese Kempeitai and their clashes with samsengs (gangsters). The Nan-Mei-Su Girls of Emerald Hill Singaporean waitresses serving the Japanese Occupation: The lives of this girls living in a hostel environment their boyfriends Japanese majors violence gangsters and how the occupation finally ended and in the search of their own families:

Five charming Singapore girls and their lovable Mama-san work in a comfort house set up by the Japanese Army in Cairnhill. At Nan Mei Su or the House of Southern Beauties the girls experienced exciting beautiful romantic and dangerous adventures. A good book to read to understand the humane of Japanese occupation's - the few that wants it to continue despite all of the circumstances. Great read for the younger generation. Available from NLB Singapore. 9971641992

