Well he started by questioning the paternity. She is sweet innocent and sexy who wouldn't love her. Zach is a military hero. This was Lia's story. But Zach was hiding his pain and vulnerability. He was battling PTSD from being shot down in the war. Then they part. She to stay in Sicily. He to return to the USA. Demands a DNA test. The heroine is hurt but can see he is hurting. She begs him to get help intelligent girl. Lia is a shy awkward self-conscious girl. She is hungry for acceptance and affection. She is a strong kind and caring heroine. She thinks everybody else sees her as fat. Except for the hero that is. He seems to think she's the sexiest woman ever. He doesn't see her as fat at all. Instead the heroine was detached from her family. I liked the story and the conflict on the hero's side. That's it. Anyhoo the good parts. And an adorable sweetheart to top it off. Lynn Raye Harris I hail you. I absolutely loved him. I more than loved him. And the PTSD just made him hotter. It was only that he kept pushing the heroine away. And the heroine at times held onto her pride too much. It kind of irked me but I understood why she did it. As for the writing it was amazing. I loved the exotic setting and the description. This author is a good one. I loved the sweetness in this story. 0373131844 Rating 3. She thankfully leaves him but takes him back
