His monster... Wulver has known captivity – the lash of the whip the leather of the collar the clang of prison bars. He has lived it escaped it and is determined to never experience it again. Only now for the good of his pack he is forced to work alongside a threat to his freedom – a pale-eyed woman who smells of moonlight: Known as the Master of Monsters Rule is able to bend even sentient creatures to her will: Revered and reviled in equal measure for her extraordinary powers Rule is used to suspicious glances and outright hostility: Not that it matters not even when it comes from an alpha werewolf whose beast calls to her unlike any other: Together Wulver and Rule must uncover why werewolves are disappearing. Danielle writes stories full of fantastical goodness and plenty of action but always with lots of romance (and a bit of woo hoo!) mixed in. Vampires and Werewolves and Demons and Angels Sword Sorcery Fairy Tales Updated Mythologies and the like if its out of the ordinary its fair game for her stories, Danielle writes stories full of fantastical goodness and plenty of action but always with lots of romance (and a bit of woo hoo!) mixed in, Vampires and Werewolves and Demons and Angels Sword Sorcery Fairy Tales Updated Mythologies and the like if it's out of the ordinary it's fair game for her stories: When not writing Danielle reads comic books and watches cartoons (though she says she reads manga and watches anime because saying it in a different language makes all the difference,) She listens to music plays DD follows XKCD watches movies with the Rifftrax on and is mom to two amazing little girls and wife to her favorite guy in the world. ...will not submit to her.
