She lives in St. {site_link} A wonderful book of poetry. Certainly not everyone's cup of tea but beautiful throughout. Existential nihilistic lyrical and then a surprise...love. Nowhere to go except back. I felt a man's ribs in their cage. He didn't mind. I've been a coward most of my life nothing unusual. I am the earth quartz-fret and sparks of salt. I will be pressed against. Known. English My favorite Mary Jo Bang thus far. (3. The cat is no longer. Her body sheds its unused breath; a muscle twitches in objection. Nothing now can be undone. How smooth the flesh in death. Someone has arrived to wash the dust away. Mulberry stains. Indelible marks in hidden places. Look at you. The body remembers. You never won but dearly battled. The sky here is streaked with tile. You bloom in this forest of white. I cannot nor would I give back what's been given." — "Twilight Amnesia" English
