

Death across the Chesapeake (The Max Hurlock Roaring 20s Mysteries) By John Reisinger He has recently completed The Secrets Behind the Structures: The little known stories behind some John Reisinger is a former Coast Guard officer and engineer who writes on historic incidents and themes. His website is {site_link} {site_link} In the latest Max Hurlock Roaring 20s Mystery set in 1926 the Hurlocks are back on Maryland's sleepy Eastern Shore to settle down to a quiet life after years of solving murders. But when a local stockbroker is killed in his locked office in a building owned by the wealthy and eccentric Stilwells the Easton police know they have a delicate situation on their hands and turn to Max and Allison for help. Several unhappy investors a soon-to-be ex-wife and a disappointed lady friend of the victim all have motives and there seems to be some connection to the Stilwells themselves and their mysterious and well-guarded waterfront estate Casa Leone. Add to the mix a man from Allison's past an unlikely New York art dealer with a passion for mysteries some ravenous reporters a steel walk-in safe that seems to hold nothing of value a book found at the crime scene that shouldn't be there and a small unexplained pile of plaster dust and it soon becomes clear that Max's retirement from detective work was premature. The Max Hurlock Roaring 20s Mysteries are based on real-life cases and are set in the lawless Jazz Age when illegal liquor gave rise to organized crime bootleggers and rumrunners evaded the Prohibition Police and flappers danced the night away in speakeasies,

John Reisinger is a former Coast Guard officer and engineer who writes on historic incidents and themes: He is the author of Master Detective the true story of detective Ellis Parker and his controversial involvement in the Lindbergh kidnapping investigation, Max Allan Collins called Master Detective Fascinating reading for true crime buffs and mystery fans alike, John also writes the Max Hurlock Roaring 20s Mysteries a series of books based on real crimes of that era: Tidewater Times reviewer Anne Stinson said of the series Mark me down as a super fan of John Reisinger, I predict that every lover of an exciting tale told well will agree. He is the author of Master Detective the true story of detective Ellis Parker and his controversial involvement in the Lindbergh kidnapping investigation: Max Allan Collins called Master Detective Fascinating reading for true crime buffs and mystery fans alike. John also writes the Max Hurlock Roaring 20s Mysteries a series of books based on real crimes of that era, Tidewater Times reviewer Anne Stinson said of the series Mark me down as a super fan of John Reisinger: I predict that every lover of an exciting tale told well will agree: He has recently completed The Secrets Behind the Structures: The little known stories behind some of the world's most well known landmarks, John lives on Maryland's Eastern Shore and has appeared in a segment on the TV series Mysteries at the Museum: Max tries to put the pieces together while Allison helps the mayor fend off the sensation-seeking press. The pressure mounts but no one can say who killed the stockbroker or even how he did it: Though living on Maryland's deceptively quiet Eastern Shore of the Chesapeake Bay Max and Allison Hurlock get drawn into mysterious murder cases across the country. The end notes of each book provide a summary of the real life case on which the story is based. Death across the Chesapeake (The Max Hurlock Roaring 20s Mysteries)

