As in "you all". It drives me batty. The complete and utterly incorrect use of "y'all". It does NOT indicate a single person use. Millions of children are on summer break from school. One of them is Isabel Vargas. For now. And the knife was only the first attempt. Tom Barber A Young Girl Family Murdered Around Her. Now Someone Is After Her. The daughter of a former Manhattan Mafioso. Hiding in a hamper when her family is slaughtered around her. Now a Killer has attempted to remove her. And they will Not stop until they Do. But all their tricks and maneuvers don't work. And the Killer is on his way to her. This time the person in the firing line is Isabel. Fortunately she has two things going for her. One her own strength and two Sam Archer on her side. Bravo Tom Barber you've done it again. These combo is one of the best reads I've encountered. Great storytelling good action and characters I care about. This series is a reliable trip to action and suspense
