Her Godmother Margaret reluctantly takes her in. "This novel is set in the 1910s. World War I had just begun. It was so unique & sudden. I LOVED IT. SO MUCH CHEMISTRY. That's why it was unsatisfying! AHHH. sigh. It would've made all the difference in the world. The pace was perfect. She was elegant smart & self-aware. Also Lizzie's friendship with Polly is EVERYTHING. It didn't feel out of place or performative. Many women in this book were suffragettes. _____ MAIN CRITICISM would be the lack of conflict. Don't even get me started on that ending. God help me. No comments only mixed feelings. The romance could have been more well developed. A lot of telling when it came to their relationship. Lizzie. She realizes Lizzie's dad is not welcoming.
