

The Facade (Eden Falls Academy, #2) By Judy Corry Looking forward to Elyse's story! And based on the epilogue I can already see the drama brewing! Received a copy from the author herself for an honest review and this does not affect my review or rating of the book thank you! The Facade (Eden Falls Academy.

Judy Corry is the USA Today Bestselling Author of YA and Sweet Contemporary Romance. But when Mack's sleepwalking episodes lead him to staying a few nights on the trundle bed in my room and we talk and share things we never tell anyone else I start to wonder if a secret relationship is exactly what I want. But what my brothers don't know can't hurt them right? The Facade (Eden Falls Academy #2) This story really was one of a kind adorable and a must read!! Mack is a 6 foot 5 inch basketball player that has problems sleepwalking. I thank the author for the ARC! It's well worth reading!! I can't wait for the next story in the series! The Facade (Eden Falls Academy #2) I loved hanging out with Mack and Cambrielle these past few months. I hope you enjoy it! The Facade (Eden Falls Academy #2) This was such an exciting story! The idea of secretly dating your over-protective brothers' best friend??? I was over the moon for Mack and Cambrielle! They were so fun to read Mack your typically charming flirty guy but is a high softie as well. The Facade (Eden Falls Academy #2) The Facade r e v i e w * kissing lessons* friends to lovers* brother's best friend* secret dating Though it also focuses on a rather serious topic (regarding Mack's storyline) this book also revives the fluffy feels from book 1 and gave me exactly what I needed after reading some more dark themed books - a good time. 3/5 The Facade (Eden Falls Academy #2) You show them Cambrielle! I loved how she poked Nash in the chest and finallyyyy managed to stop her brothers' over-protectiveness:D The Facade (Eden Falls Academy #2) The Facade was a sweet cute and romantic story between friends that blossoms into a lot more than expected. It was a sort of coming of age story for Cambrielle Hastings with having a lot of first experiences when it comes to putting herself out there and getting into a relationship with her brothers best friend and next door neighbor Mack Aarden. All resulting in Cambrielle and Mack having their plates full making their path together a tough one to whether through considering the endless obstacles and hurdles to overcome in order for them to know if it's the real deal and worth it. With all of that going on Judy Corry made you feel the many different emotions seeping out from the pages with giving you an understanding just what exactly Mack and Cambrielle felt and endure throughout. Especially since it felt a little too wordy resulting in the progression of the story not feeling like it was going anywhere with the lack of a strong and clear direction IMO. It's full of high school drama real life scenarios relatable characters & a group of friends you want to be apart of! It can be read as a stand-alone but in order to really get the background & characters you should read The Charade first (check out my review), She lives in Southern Utah with her husband and their four children where she is living out her own happily ever after with the boy who took her to her Jr. Join Judys VIP Readers Club for a FREE copy of her books WHEN WE BEGAN and STOLEN KISSES FROM A ROCK STAR at judycorry. Sweet and shy but determined to make the most of her high school life: They deal with certain things which I admired and I loved how they managed it in their own ways and how they could help each other out as well: I loved how well they dealt with different and difficult situations but also had plenty of stolen moments they could cherish secretly: She writes romance because she can't get enough of the feeling of falling in love, Shes known for writing swoon worthy kisses endearing characters endearing characters and hard won happily ever afters. I'm a junior in high school and yet I've never been on a date. Everybody says it's because my overprotective brothers scare all the guys away but I can't help wondering if there's something wrong with me: That is until I hear a rumor that I'm secretly dating my brothers' best friend. What? Sure I used to think Mack was the most perfect guy in the universe but I got over that crush years ago. And even though he teases my brothers about taking me to Make-Out Point there's no way he'd actually make good on that threat: My brothers have made it clear that Mack is never allowed near me, He has walked through the woods swam with the fishies and slept in other peoples beds, Cambrielle had a crush on Mack till he started joking about dating her. Him being not serious stung and really put a damper on her feelings: So she ends up having a crush on someone that looks a lot like him Ben: I absolutely cherish this story there was a lot of parts that hit home for me, They made me laugh they made me cry and they even made me swoon: 5 The Facade (Eden Falls Academy #2) I really enjoyed reading Cambrielle's and Mack's story, There is a lot of emotion but it is executed so sweetly. He really has some issues but it is addressed in an appropriate way: Mack is so swoony and I love how he says he doesn't have feelings but he does. I also enjoyed the tenderness and the relationship she has with her family, I like how they are more on the steamier side but nonetheless extremely sweet. There is loads of chemistry and the pacing is really good. *I have received an ARC in exchange for an honest review: The Facade (Eden Falls Academy #2)

Cambrielle is over her crush on her neighbor and brothers' best friend Mack or so she thought, Until Mack occasionally sleepwalked to her house and into her room. It took a kissing tutorial and few jealous moments for Mack to realize that he had stopped seeing her as his annoying 'little sister but as a woman, The bigger problem is that her brothers will never allow their 'player' friend to date their little sister. Although I have read a lot of best friend's little sister's romance this is one of my favorites: Still there is no spice (□) although I didn't expect that to change here it's something I've been missing. Cambrielle and Mack's story definitely took them on quite a journey from the get go: Not realising what one simple event could lead to turns into them keeping their blooming relationship a secret in order for it to work, Especially when you throw in overprotective older brothers life issues involving family illnesses and schooling decisions, Leading to moments that had you laughing smiling swooning whilst simultaneously feeling sad crying and hurting from the heartache and pain that both suffered through. Especially Mack when it came to his mother it had my heart breaking for him: While I did enjoy the story overall I did have to knock off a star firstly because in the beginning the story felt a little too slow paced for my liking: Also I felt the drama surrounding the situation Cambrielle uncovers happened quite quickly with it all being over too fast: I guess I would have preferred it either be expanded on a little more considering I expected there to be a bigger explosion from the outcome of it all: All in all The Facadewas a sweet story with seeing Cambrielle and Mack having a HEA they deserved: Safe to say I am still looking forward to Elyse's story next: The Facade (Eden Falls Academy #2) The Facade- Judy Corry5 □□□□□Eden Falls Academy has quickly become my all time favorite series ever written by Judy Corry. If you like Abbi Gline's Field Party series I would say this is a cleaner (but still all the feels) version minus the football aspect. As much as I loved Carter & Ava I think Mack & Cambrielle take the cake: This had so much emotion forbidden/secret love (brother's best friend my fav!) heartbreak rekindled old crushes growth & love. It's nostalgic the whole time I was reading I re felt all those feelings of falling in love & being insane over the other person all over again, I can't wait for Elyse & Nash's story next! The Facade (Eden Falls Academy #2).
