

Book L'Étranger / La pestes

قرأته قبل سنوات و منذ فترة تذكرته ولم اجده في مكتبتي تركته لشخص ما ولم يعده، اشتريت نسخة جديدة منه وقرأته مجدداً، كتاب رائع يستحق القراءة، الغريب هنا يعيش في عالم لاشيء فيه مهم بالنسبة له، وأجمل ما قام به الكاتب هو البدء بوفاة والدة L'Étranger / La pesten plays French L'Étranger is a short novel about a stranger who is condemned to a death sentence not because he is a murderer (which he is) but because he angered the public opinion due to 1) Being an outsider; 2) He displays no visible emotions on his facial expressions and 3) He did not cry at his mother's funeral. Book L'Étranger / La pestering The absurdity of the arguments in his trial is so believable this book makes a major point in discussing the random arbitrariness of human judgement and fragility of a man's doom. PDF L'Étranger / La pestering It is considered the Masterpiece of the Author.

Book L'Étranger / La pestet

Included on the Norwegian Book Clubs list of Top 100 Works in World Literature compiled with the Nobel Institute and the participation of luminaries giants like the regretted Umberto Eco Salman Rushdie John Irving <https://thegreatestbooks.org/lists/28> which has an interview in the format that the under signed has just finished reading - well it is actually a splendid audiobook read by the sublime Michael Lonsdale - and we find details on the author such as the fact that he has declared he is not the protagonist of the book - though there is surely his image in there...The rebel at the center of this narrative is alienated he is against institutions that pronounce la peine de mort execute people the church - he refuses to find absolution religious peace at the end when the pere - and he refuses to call him father since he is not his parent - tries to mention sin repentance and the quest for serenity before the final countdown...which reminds yours truly of Fyodor Dostoevsky and the theme of the man who has been condemned to death and would rather live on a rock a small one at that miniscule to be more precise than die...an experience that Dostoevsky himself had been through once he had been condemned to face the execution squad and then he was paroled at the last moment...This magnum opus could not have a more striking start 'today my mother has died...Today or yesterday. Book L'Étranger / La pesterchum I am not sure I have received a telegram 'mere decedee'...the style is abrupt as if cut with a hatchet - I think in the aforementioned interview they use a similar expression at least sounds like it in French - and it is clear right from the beginning that the main character really is a Stranger in that he is far away from his mother and he had been for the past three years ever since she has been sent to an asylum where he has lost interest in her - true he is disengaged from everything life has little if any meaning for The Stranger aka Meursault who is indifferent when asked about marriage by Marie and he is detached from society does not have a desire to move to Paris from North Africa when asked by his patron As he arrives at the asylum for the burial of his mother Meursault is overwhelmed by fatigue -his physical incapacity the limitations of his body will be used to explain the most important events his general behavior...when there is an inquest over the murder he explains that 'it was the sun'- and looks indifferent he does not cry - there is a woman that had been a friend of the mother who cries desperate that she has lost a friend and there is nobody for her now - and the manager employee of the funeral company and the friend of the mother are quite appalled by the absent son to the extent that they will testify later at the trial making the point for the prosecution that this is a man without feelings showing no love for his deceased parent. L'Étranger / La pestepidemiem The next day he meets Marie and they enjoy the beach swim in the sea and go the cinema where they see a movie with Fernandel a comedy...this will also be used in court as evidence that the accused had just buried his mother and the next day he watches a comedy takes the sun in and then a strange woman to his home and all this proves how indifferent he is...Albert Camus would explain In our society any man who does not weep at his mother's funeral runs the risk of being sentenced to death. Book L'Étranger / La pestel 'L'Étranger has a neighbor Raymond Sintes who has a reputation of being a 'maquereau' a pimp that claims this is not true he complains about this woman that he pretends he pays providing her with money which she then spends with her friends and he is outraged whys is she not taking a half day to work for some more money - and wants the main character to be his friend son copain to write a letter to her and then after he slaps the poor victim around beats her he wants Meursault to testify at the police station that Raymond had 'felt the absence of the woman' a testimony meant to help with his case...Instead of taking a stand helping the victim or at the very least express condemnation and outrage at the violence The Stranger is in fact trying to highlight that Raymond had extracted some punishment - if only for this he deserves the guillotine...this is just a hyperbole a joke in the dark morbid depressing alienating mood of L'Étranger - and he would accept the idea that the maquereau is his mate and from here tragedy ensues which is to say Hazard Accident Coincidence plays such an enormous part in the tragedy of the antihero and in the lives of us all this being one of the main points of the narrative if not the most important one...Is it actually so absurd as to defy belief if we were not to look at the news and see the American Congress occupied by domestic terrorists brought in by the very stable genius aka their president no less Russia's leader claiming the leader of the opposition had tried to kill himself with military grade poison gas - because if his people had wanted to do him in Navalny would be dead - when in fact the astute extremely brilliant opposition figure - who has the courage of Superman to return to the land of the tyrant - has called one of those involved in the secret operation and the killer admitted that they had placed the poison on the...underpants of Navalny. Book L'Étranger / La pestes Raymond Sintes has a conflict with the relatives and friends of the woman he had abused and beaten and they wait outside the building as Meursault and Marie join him to go to the beach - in other words the Stranger has been looking for trouble and if we associate with such goons and thugs we are looking for trouble...though on the other hand there is that joke about Judas I think where one refers to the company the traitor kept...what good did it do to him to be with Jesus and the Apostles he still did the son of God in. Fiction L'Étranger / La pester Furthermore as the three companions reach the beach - incidentally Marie talks about marriage and the Absolute Indifference Alienation of the protagonist is again exposed for he says more or less that this is of no consequence to him and if another woman with the same context would ask him he would give the same answer - the Arabs appear on the beach again there is a confrontation and things seem to follow a more peaceful path only to offer the readers a surprise though the paroxysm of the killing is shaken by the fact that the sun heat and the exhaustion of Meursault together with hazard play an overwhelming role since the Stranger has in fact nothing against the Arab who has a knife but nevertheless the situation could have been handled differently using a warning French Герои нашего времениУ каждого периода в литературе свои главные герои. L'Étranger / La Peste ebook free download Почему важно знать героев своего времени? Works such as the novels The Stranger (1942) and The Plague (1947) of Algerian born French writer and philosopher Albert Camus concern the absurdity of the human condition; he won the Nobel Prize of 1957 for literature. Fiction L'Étranger / La peste lyrics He also adapted plays of Pedro Calderón de la Barca Lope de Vega Dino Buzzati and Requiem for a Nun of William Faulkner. L'Étranger / La pestene One may trace his enjoyment of the theater back to his membership in l'Equipe an Algerian group whose collective creation Révolte dans les Asturies (1934) was banned for political reasons. Book L'Étranger / La pestet Of semi proletarian parents early attached to intellectual Works such as the novels The Stranger (1942) and The Plague (1947) of Algerian born French writer and philosopher Albert Camus concern the absurdity of the human condition; he won the Nobel Prize of 1957 for literature. Book L'Étranger / La pestering He also adapted plays of Pedro Calderón de la Barca Lope de Vega Dino Buzzati and Requiem for a Nun of William Faulkner. L'Étranger / La Peste pdf editor One may trace his enjoyment of the theater back to his membership in l'Equipe an Algerian group whose collective creation Révolte dans les Asturies (1934) was banned for political reasons. Book L'Étranger / La pestera Of semi proletarian parents early attached to intellectual circles of strongly revolutionary tendencies with a deep interest he came at the age of 25 years in 1938; only chance prevented him from pursuing a university career in that field. Book L'Étranger / La pestera The essay Le Mythe de Sisyphe (The Myth of Sisyphus) 1942 expounds notion of acceptance of the absurd of Camus with the total absence of hope which has nothing to do with despair a continual refusal which must not be confused with renouncement and a conscious dissatisfaction. Fiction L'Étranger / La peste lyrics Meursault central character of L'Étranger (The Stranger) 1942 illustrates much of this essay: man as the nauseated victim of the absurd orthodoxy of habit later when the young killer faces execution tempted by despair hope and salvation. L'Étranger / La pester definition Doctor Rieux of La Peste (The Plague) 1947 who tirelessly attends the plague stricken citizens of Oran enacts the revolt against a world of the absurd and of injustice and confirms words: We refuse to despair of mankind. Philosophy L'Étranger / La pestered Îmi creează senzația că fiecare cuvânt a fost ales cu precizie și că autorul se identifică cu personajul Grand din Ciurma care scrisese un manuscris de zeci de pagini în care relua mereu și mereu aceeași frază de început încercând să îi găsească forma perfectă. L'Étranger / La pestepidemie În ce privește pătrunderea deși absurdul existenței și comportamentelor umane e surprins foarte bine autorului îi scapă o parte din celelalte fațete ale omului care îl înobilează și îl așază un pic mai aproape de divinitate. Book L'Étranger / La pestera Asta va fi evident și din recenzia fiecărei cărți dar trebuie să îi dau lui Albert ce e al lui Albert: cărțile sunt cu adevărat memorabile mi-au rămas întipărite în minte ca puține altele. Book L'Étranger / La peste Prezentat ca singurul lucid dintr-o mare de oameni amețiți nu prezintă aproape nici un fel de emoție nu crede în dragoste nu pare că are un scop în viață în afară de cel de a trăi șamd. L'Étranger / La Peste kindle unlimited Cred că de fapt autorul prezintă un arhetip în personajul acesta: Camus consideră că existența e absurdă (într-adevăr procesul vinovatului are astfel de note chiar plauzibile) iar singurul mod de a o aborda este cu un soi de detașare totală. Book L'Étranger / La pestered login Îmi amintește de unii colegi din liceu (chiar de mine însumi) care se prezentau drept lucizi lipsiți de emoții plutind deasupra lumii și a oamenilor emotivi și slabi din jurul lor. La peste texte intégral In La peste the characters work together to support each other and their community in the face of adversity the complete opposite of the every-man-for-himself morality of the existentialists. L'Étranger / La Peste bookkeeping Mult mai tare mi-a plăcut Strainul foarte interesant personajul Meursault deopotrivă onest și negativ două trasaturi care aparent nu pot caracteriza acelasi om nevertheless after reading L'Étranger Le Malentendu and L'État de Siège I would be careful picking one work to represent the whole oeuvre which is quite diverse in my opinion: L'Étranger / La pestered French L'Étranger by Albert Camus 10 out of 10 This is a fundamental chef d'oeuvre.
